

AirVenture 2025 Forum - Straight Talk About Aviation Safety

Pilots throughout the world regard John and Martha as their personal aviation mentors from their videos and multimedia training programs. After having had an aircraft accident of their own, and discovering their own sense of vulnerability, John and Martha say they have become “born-again pilots”. Having had a hand in the aviation education of nearly half of the pilots in the United States in the last four decades, the Kings feel a deep responsibility towards their students and a strong sense of mission about passing on practical and insightful tools for risk management.
