

You Are Not as Good as You Think- A Case for Deliberate Airmanship (Sunday May 3rd)

Event Details

This presentation challenges the idea that experience alone equals proficiency, and examines how complacency, normalized risk, and undeliberate flying quietly erode safety. Drawing from personal experience, accident trends, and thousands of hours of instruction, this talk makes a practical case for deliberate airmanship.

This event is located on the Alaska State Fairgrounds, Palmer AK. This seminar is located in the Hoskins Exhibits Hall, marked as building #17 on the attached fairgrounds map. It is a light green building with white trim.

This seminar is scheduled for 1200 - 1250 and will earn attendees 1 hr of Master Risk Management WINGS credit.
