

The Day The Music Died

On February 3, 1959, singers Buddy Holly, Richie Valens, and the "Big Bopper", died in a crash at Clear Lake, Iowa. That event was featured in Don McLean's 1971 song American Pie. The accident was blamed on pilot error - disorientation, flight into terrain. 52 years since that accident, spatial disorientation has continued to be a "killer". The NTSB identified it as a factor in John F. Kennedy's plane crash. This program will review the causes of spatial disorientation and some of the things we can do to mitigate the risks of it.

Directions: Look for the MPA sign in the lobby.

A message from the National FAASTeam Manager

Over 136,600 pilots earned WINGS credits last year. Will you, this year?

Sign up for the FAA's safety services at www.FAASafety.gov!

Event Details

Wed, Sep 21, 2011 - 7:00 pm

Maryland Heights Centre

2344 McKelvey Road

Maryland Heights, MO 63043

Contact: Fred P. Harms

(800) 322-8876

Fred.Harms@faa.gov

Select #: CE0340029

Lead Representative Fred Peter Harms