

The Schiff Show Coming In HOT - Too Little Too Late

This episode exposes the warning signs pilots miss when pressure, momentum, and bad timing push them past the point of recovery. You'll see how unstable approaches, delayed go-arounds, and flawed judgment can trap even experienced crews — and why the safest landing decision is often the one made before things get out of control

Registration is not required. After viewing the program, WINGS Credit is earned immediately upon successful completion of a short quiz. The link to that quiz is on the page noted below.
