

Personal Minimums - Our Safety Net & FAA Topics of the Year

We all have personal minimums for everything we do. We don't think about them - they are just there, created by past experience. They are intended to keep us safe and away from danger. Some are more restrictive than others. As time passes we stretch them - just a little - to get the job done. When it works we modify our minimums and increase our willingness to accept more risk. Where will You draw the line? Topics of the Year focus on 12 different issues that threaten our safety - and appear as factors in most accidents.
