

Weather Forecasting and Aviation Weather Services

Pre-flight planning is important factor every time we climb into the cockpit and weather predicting should be an important element in every pilots toolbox. At this meeting we are pleased to welcome two meteorologists from the National Weather Service to help explain some of the features of the aviation weather website and make predictions about our global weather patterns. Don't miss this exclusive event. Click the link below and register TODAY!

Directions: For information on KIDI, see the Additional Information section below.
The presentation will be in the main terminal.
