BAL FAASTeam presents:

Avoiding Pilot Deviations in the Baltimore Washington DC SFRA

The Airspace in the Baltimore, MD and Washington D.C. areas contain the Flight Restricted Zone (FRZ), SFRA, TFR's and many other areas of Special Use Airspace. If you fly in this airspace or plan to in the future, don't miss this updated and valuable presentation provided by an Air-traffic Controller at Potomac TRACON. The speaker is assigned to the Chesapeake Sector, which includes most of the Baltimore and Washington DC Airspace. There will be ample time for questions at the end of the presentation.

- Prior to the TRACON presentation there will be a short meeting provided by Airport management discussing current local safety trends and upcoming runway proijects.
