

FAASTeam presents:

The Improbable Turn-Are YOU Ready?

Did you know take-off and initial climb are the most fatal phases of flight? (NALL Report) We need to prepare better before we apply the throttle and also commit to greater vigilance in this critical area of flight. Professional CFIs must be ready to provide solid, safe guidance and training for pilots at all levels. Join Rod Machado, Russ Still, and David St. George to gain insight in this critical phase of flight.

Directions: Turning back to the runway in an emergency is only a good idea if you are practiced and prepared. Join us and examine this critical phase of flight; advice and tools for every pilot (and CFI teaching)
