

FAASTeam presents:

Many Happy Returns

We want our return to the airport to be as happy as our departure. But far too many landings end up off the runway. Sometimes these excursions happen when an airplane departs the side of a runway and some happen when the airplane runs off the end. Serious injury or death from runway excursions is not common but does occur. Minor injuries and costly damage to the airplane and sometimes to airport facilities is however a frequent result of runway excursions.

This live webinar will examine the common causes of runway excursions and offer some ways to help avoid them.
