Washington FSDO FAASTeam presents:

Whats Up!? Know - Learn - Fly Webinar Series

Most VFR-into-IMC accidents don't begin in the clouds. They begin on the ground with a departure decision, continue through a series of rationalizations as conditions deteriorate, and end when the pilot runs out of options. In this month's What's Up webinar, we'll examine the aeronautical decision-making challenges that lead pilots into worsening weather, the psychological traps that encourage "just a little farther" thinking, and the practical steps every pilot can take to avoid and escape inadvertent IMC. Drawing on guidance from the AOPA Air Safety Institute and the General Aviation Joint Steering Committee (GAJSC), we'll focus on lessons pilots can immediately apply to their own flying.

In this webinar, you'll learn:

- Deciding whether to launch into marginal conditions in the first place.
- Assessing the situation when VFR conditions worsen.
- What to do if you unexpectedly enter IMC.
- How to continue building proficiency after the
