

EAA IMC Club Meeting - Human Factors and Communication

The EAA IMC Club provides a "hangar flying" experience organized around instrument flight, in order to promote safety, education, and proficiency.

This month, we'll have two scenarios involving challenging human factors issues such as fatigue as well as communication with ATC about those issues. What are your limits? How do you know if you're in trouble? What can affect those issues?

Bring your EFB, your experience, and your questions, and be ready to participate.

All are welcome. You do not need to be an EAA member or rated instrument pilot to attend.

If arriving by plane: please park at the main ramp near the south-east end. The meeting is in the tower building, second to left of the Midfield Cafe.

If arriving by car: free parking in the lot near tower building.
