Representative DARYL NORVAL SMITH

Whether you're planning a local flight or extended cross country flight, flying in winter conditions requires some unique preparations. Frigid temperatures require pilots and aircraft to be prepared in different ways. Icing conditions in the air and on the airport ramp both require advanced planning. Periods of long darkness require night currency and the pilots' health and alertness are important for a safe flight start to finish. Join us as 3 pilot/speakers, AME Dr. Gary Bertman, MD discusses over the counter medications and prescriptions, A&P/IA Steve Kelley on the importance of a winter ready aircraft and CFII Daryl Smith on Flight planning & survival, share their winter flying experiences from these important perspectives. Directions: Route 95 to Groton, CT. Take Route 1 North to Tower Road. Take Right on Tower Road. Mystic Jet Center is on the Left.
