

What to do when you think the FAA might tell you that you are special

We often hear medical experts talk about the medical process especially about getting a waiver for a known issue. What about the pilot's perspective? Are they the same view?

Frustrating? Most likely. Intimidating? Definitely! Listen to this case study and discussion of special issuance medical issues as you may be going through a waiver request or see one creeping up on you soon.

Directions: This seminar will be located in the Modern Avionics Hanger located behind shop.
