

Social Benefit Flying

What if your next flight could change a life? Social benefit flying sits at the unique intersection of aviation, public service, and human need. In this session, LifeLine Pilots draws on its 45-year experience coordinated air transportation through volunteer pilots for passengers with medical and humanitarian to highlight both the human stories behind the flights and the practical frameworks that make them possible. Designed for pilots of all experience levels, this presentation explores the full spectrum of mission-driven aviation. We'll examine key opportunities to get involved, common operational challenges, and critical considerations around risk management and decision-making. Learn how to navigate this rewarding space while maintaining the highest standards of safety and professionalism.
