

EMI Monthly Safety Meeting May 2024

Emphasizing the benefits of Human Factors Training for pilots

Teaching Points:

- General aviation accidents have resulted from human factors issues.
- Human biases can cause pilots to ignore critical information, exceed aircraft limitations, and persist with mission plans despite compelling evidence that safer courses of action are available.
- Overreliance on aircraft automation can diminish situational awareness and degrade hand-flying skill.

An updated Airspace presentation by Dan Holtzclaw

Via personal vehicle - ample parking in terminal parking lot.

Fly-in: park on ramp as directed by ATC.
