

FAASTeam presents:

Enhanced Aviation Safety- A perspective from a NTSB investigator

Zoë Keliher has been an investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board for over 14 years. In this capacity, she has completed over 500 accident investigations. She holds pilot certificates for rotorcraft-helicopter, commercial multi-engine airplane, single-engine SEA, and an instrument rating. Additionally, she is an airframe and power plant mechanic.

Zoë Keliher is an Air Safety Investigator with the National Transportation Safety Board. Zoë has a unique perspective on the subject because of her role with the NTSB as an aviation accident investigator. She can provide valuable life saving insight that she has learned from aircraft accident investigations.

The objective of Zoë's presentation is to enhance aviation safety. She has a unique perspective on aviation safety because of her role with the NTSB as an aviation accident investigator. Pilots in the general aviation community can learn from the mistakes of others; resulting in saving lives.
