

Orlando FSDO FAA Safety Team presents:

Getting Ready for Another Summer of Florida Flying Weather!

Our friend, Tony Cristaldi, Senior Forecaster from the National Weather Service - Melbourne, will discuss the NWS' role in providing aviation products and services, not only at a national level, but more importantly for us, at the local level, including the history of aviation services at NWS Melbourne. Tony will give us a primer on Florida summer thunderstorms geared for pilots, discuss coverage and distribution patterns of storms and how these patterns are dependent upon variations in temperature, moisture, wind regimes, based largely on the position of the subtropical high pressure ridge. Especially important for new and old pilots alike, Tony will discuss recognition and avoidance of hazardous weather types.
