Orlando FSDO FAA Safety Team presents:

Florida Aviation Network Presents Lewis Hagler of FDOT on Plane Time 35!

The Florida Aviation Network (FAN) is broadcasting this popular multi-part aviation safety talk show that is recorded "Live". All aspects of aviation could be discussed; however, "Plane Time" frequently emphasizes often-overlooked facets of the aviation industry. Make time to view and enjoy "Plane Time" - It might even save your life. Watch with a friend! In this segment, Host Ben Coleman welcomes Lewis Hagler, an Aviation Planning Administrator with the Florida Department of Transportation (FDOT)'s Aviation Office. Lewis is a retired USAF officer (C-130 pilot, KC-135 pilot, among other positions) and has extensive commercial airport planning experience. This special show focuses on airport infrastructure development and operational safety considerations for Florida. Many new technologies and designs, including AAM and eVTOL, plus new flight planning and support systems, are coming to Florida's airports. Tune in and see how the Sunshine State planning the future of its airport intrastructure.
