

FAASTeam presents:

A Checklist Culture

Matthew "Camel" Mato will discuss with us the importance of a strong checklist culture and how that culture can be transferred into other industries as well as our daily lives.

Matt is the Director of Products at Check-6 International, guiding a unique group of technology and service solutions which drive operational efficiency and team reliability for Fortune 1000 and state-operated businesses in over 20 countries.

As a Naval Officer, Matt had the privilege of leading teams, both large and small, in combat, support, and humanitarian operations. He served as a pilot and commander in both the EA-6B Prowler and S-3B Viking, leading over 120 combat missions and conducting shipboard operations world-wide. Following his service, he joined the F-35 Joint Strike Fighter program as a product manager and liaison to US and Foreign National services for the pilot training system design. He has considerable experience in the commercial aviation sector as a line pilot for Southwest Airlines and founded a small business providing training and standardization expertise to the Oil & Gas industry prior to joining Check-6 in 2011.
