

FAASTeam presents:

VFR Chart Challenge - Can you find your way around without the glowing magenta line?

What would you do if your GPS failed? Could you get where you were going? GPS has taken such an important role in aviation navigation that some of us are becoming slaves to the glowing magenta line. Resist GPS slavery and challenge yourself to keep your old-school pilotage skills up. Refresh your knowledge of VFR charts and the wealth of information they contain. Experienced check airman and training captain Ben Taber has pulled together some of the most challenging VFR chart issues, taken from his "Checkride Oral" series. On any checkride, the examiner could ask a pilot candidate nearly anything about the information displayed on the VFR Sectional and Terminal Area Charts. Are you ready for your oral exam? Could you pass the exam again as part of your next flight review? Let alone with a VFR Sectional Chart and the view out the window could you know enough to navigate your way safely to a new destination? Join us for Ben Taber's popular take on general aviation and dive deeper into your pilot knowledge bank at this fun and challenging seminar. San Carlos Flight Center is committed to promoting safety in general aviation through our evening safety seminar programs.
