

FAASTeam presents:

Electronic Logbooks

More and more pilots are switching to electronic logbooks. Have you considered switching yourself?

The convenience of keeping your logbook in an electronic format is especially valuable. What are the available options and their benefits? How do you switch? Where do you begin? How do you use your electronic logbook with an instructor? How are endorsements handled in an electronic logbook? What would the reaction be from a DPE when you present your electronic logbook?

Join us for a panel discussion that will answers these questions and many more. Our panel includes two experienced pilots that use electronic logbooks extensively. Michael LaStella and Eric Wager will share with you how they have been using their electronic logbooks during training and after their received their private pilot certificate.

In this safety seminar, we will review the reasons you may want to make the switch from paper to electronic, or to supplement your paper with electronic, including the ease with which you will be able to track and report flight currency. We will also give an overview of the available apps and run through options on how to get started.

This seminar is a great starting point for pilots who want to maintain their flight records in a
