

Pilots Using Their Flying Skills to Give Back to the Community

Many private pilots take to the skies simply for the joy of it—exploring with friends and family, savoring the freedom of flight. But if you're looking to give your time in the air a deeper purpose, consider philanthropy flying—volunteering your skills to help others in need.

At San Carlos Flight Center, we believe general aviation can be a powerful force for good. That's why we encourage and support “Philanthropy Flights”—flights in direct service of nonprofit organizations like Angel Flight West, Pilots N Paws, CalDART, EAA Young Eagles, and others. As part of that commitment, SCFC offers rental discounts to club members flying approved charitable missions.
